“ Warren raised and supported many families. His children, Betty's children, his grandchildren Robby and Dawn Sargent, after their mother was murdered. He helped raised other grandchildren while family needed time to improve their life situations. His longevity was always spent in service of loved ones. After Robby suffered traumatic brain injury in his adulthood, Warren made a home for him, until his sudden death almost one year ago. We are sure God has a special place for men like him that gives all his life from his heart and kept his home open for those in need. The only comfort is the hope he is reunited with family and friends already on the other side, and he is pulling for all of us from his new spiritual life. We love you Betty, and family. Can't imagine your loss.
